

Sky Bug Bounty Program Terms and Conditions

These Sky Bug Bounty Program Terms and Conditions (these "Terms and Conditions") set forth the terms and conditions for the participation in the Sky Bug Bounty Program (the "Program") enacted by Sky Co., LTD. ("Sky"). Persons who investigate or report vulnerabilities ("Participate" or "Participation") pursuant to the Program (the "Reporters") shall be deemed to have agreed to these Terms and Conditions.

Article 1 Sky Bug Bounty Program

1. Under the Program, when a Reporter reports any information security flaw(s) caused by a program defect or design error (including, but not limited to, vulnerabilities or methods of attack; "Vulnerabilities") relating to products, services, and websites that Sky provides (such products, services, and websites subject to the Program shall be referred to as the "Target Products") to Sky in accordance with the methods set forth herein, and Sky judges that it is a valuable report, a reward in an amount determined by Sky (the "Reward") shall be paid to the Reporter.
2. The Target Products are described in the website regarding the Program. The Target Products may be altered without prior notice.
3. Sky shall comply with all domestic or foreign laws, cabinet orders, circular notices, regulations (including, but not limited to, regulations set forth by financial instrument exchanges), orders, ordinances, guidelines, and other legal norms ("Laws and Regulations") relating to Reward payments (including, but not limited to, all laws and regulations, and rules and guidelines relating to gifts, ethics, and donations), and will provide Rewards in accordance with these Terms and Conditions.

Article 2 Amendment of these Terms and Conditions and/or the Program

1. Sky may, at its discretion, amend these Terms and Conditions and/or the contents of the Program, either in whole or in part, to the extent that doing so does not violate any laws or regulations.
2. In the event that Sky intends to amend the contents of these Terms and Conditions and/or the Program, Sky shall determine the effective date of such amendment and, prior to such effective date, post and publicize the contents of the modified Terms and Conditions and/or Program, together with its effective date, on the website regarding the Program.
3. If a Reporter Participates in the Program on or after the effective date of the amendment based on the preceding paragraph, or has Participated in the Program prior to the effective date of the amendment and continues to Participate after the said date, the Reporter shall be deemed to have consented to the contents of the amended Terms and Conditions.

If any amendment to these Terms and Conditions is made during the period for assessment of a Vulnerability Information (as defined in Article 4, Paragraph 3) stipulated in Article 8, Sky will inform the concerned Reporter of such amendment.

Article 3 Eligibility for Participation

1. Only those who meet all of the following criteria are entitled to Participate in the Program.

Article 4 How to Participate

1. Reports submitted under the Program shall be in Japanese or English. Reports in languages other than Japanese or English will not be accepted.

2. Applications for Participation in the Program may be made through a special web form (the "Program Form"). In the Program Form, the Reporter should submit an e-mail address that can be used for exchanges with Sky.
3. When a Reporter discovers or identifies a Vulnerability related to the Target Products, the Reporter shall report and submit information on the Vulnerability ("Vulnerability Information") through the Program Form following the procedures specified by Sky.
4. Reporters are encouraged to include, in as much detail as possible, the following information in the Vulnerability Information report:
 - (a) Type of problem (buffer overflow, SQL injection, cross-site scripting, etc.)
 - (b) Name and version of the Target Product(s) which include(s) Vulnerabilities, or the URL (for online services)
 - (c) Special configuration needed to replicate the problem
 - (d) Step-by-step procedure for reproducing problems with a new installation
 - (e) Proof-of-concept code or exploit code
 - (f) Problem impact (e.g., how an attacker could exploit the Vulnerability)
5. Reporters shall follow the "Sky Bug Bounty Program Rulebook" when reporting Vulnerability Information to Sky.
6. If the Vulnerability Information submitted by a Reporter does not reach Sky, the Vulnerability Information shall be deemed not to have been submitted. Sky shall not be responsible for any failure of the Vulnerability Information to arrive for any reason whatsoever. If no confirmation e-mail from Sky is received by the Reporter within seven (7) business days of the submission of a Vulnerability Information, the Vulnerability Information may not have been delivered to Sky. In such case, please contact Sky through the Program Form.

Article 5 Intellectual Property Rights

1. The Reporter shall assign to Sky any copyright, trademark right, design right, patent right, utility model right, know-how, and other rights ("Intellectual Property Rights") relating to the Vulnerability Information. In addition, the Reporter shall refrain from exercising his/her moral rights as the right holder with respect to the Vulnerability Information, and approves Sky's performance of the following actions:
 - (a) Using, reviewing, evaluating, testing, and analyzing the Vulnerability Information;
 - (b) Copying, altering, distributing, displaying, or publishing the Vulnerability Information and all or part of its contents;
 - (c) Introducing the Vulnerability Information and all of its contents via any media (including, but not limited to, any existing media or media that may be developed in the future) in connection with the marketing, sale, or promotion of the Program or any other program (e.g., screenshots of Vulnerability Information in internal and external sales meetings, conference presentations, exhibitions and press releases, etc.).

2. The Reporter represents and warrants that the Vulnerability Information does not use information owned by others or other entities and that he/she has the legal right to provide the Vulnerability Information to Sky.

Article 6 Publication, etc. of Vulnerability Information by the Reporter

1. The Reporter is prohibited from publicizing, disclosing, providing, or leaking to any third party any Vulnerability Information or any operation that may come to his/her knowledge in the course of conducting verification investigations, except with the prior consent of Sky. Even with Sky's prior consent, publication, disclosure, or provision of Vulnerability Information is permitted only in accordance with the provisions of the Sky Bug Bounty Program Rulebook.
2. In the event of a violation of the preceding paragraph by the Reporter, Sky may suspend the Reporter's Participation in the Program thereafter and may request the reimbursement of the Reward paid to the Reporter for the Vulnerability Information pertaining to such violation.

Article 7 Vulnerability Investigation

1. Investigations and verifications relating to the Program must be conducted in an environment that is legitimately available to the Reporter, either in an on-premises environment or in a cloud service environment.
2. In the absence of an environment which is legitimately available to the Reporter, the Reporter may make reports in accordance with the Program to the extent known at the time of reporting. If the Reporter states in the report that he/she wishes to be provided with a verification environment by Sky, Sky may give consideration, and if necessary, prepare a verification environment free of charge, and request that the Reporter submit additional reports using such verification environment.
3. Even in a legitimately available cloud service environment in which investigations and verifications are conducted, the Reporter cannot conduct investigations and verifications which have a significant impact on such environment or which have the purpose of imposing a substantial load on the environment.
4. The Reporter must not access personal information of others without the prior written consent of the subject individual. Upon accessing the personal information of others, the Reporter shall immediately (i) discontinue such access, (ii) delete all data of the accessed personal information remaining in Reporter's computers, etc., and (iii) report to Sky the method of such access, the contents of the accessed personal information, etc.

Article 8 Assessment of Vulnerability Information

1. Sky will assess the Vulnerability Information promptly after it is submitted to Sky and verify its eligibility for Reward payments at its sole discretion based on the Sky Bug Bounty Program Rulebook. The time required for the assessment depends on the complexity, completeness, and the number of Vulnerability Information received by Sky.
2. If multiple Reporters send Vulnerability Information regarding the same Vulnerability to Sky, only the Reporter whose Vulnerability Information report for such Vulnerability has arrived first to Sky shall be eligible for a Reward.
3. When Vulnerability Information regarding a similar Vulnerability is received, they shall be deemed to be the same Vulnerability if Sky determines that the received Vulnerability Information relates to the same Vulnerability (including, but not limited to, Vulnerabilities caused by the same library; the same shall apply hereinafter).
4. Reporters may be able to receive partial Rewards as provided in the following article even if they report Vulnerabilities without including a proof-of-concept code or exploit code.

Article 9 Rewards

1. All matters relating to Rewards (including, but not limited to, whether to pay a Reward and the amount thereof) shall be determined by Sky. The amount of a Reward shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of Article 10 depending on the contents and details of the Vulnerability Information. However, Rewards shall not be paid if Sky decides not to do so.
2. The reporting and response process shall be considered to have been completed when Sky receives all Vulnerability Information on a Vulnerability from a Reporter and notifies the Reporter of such receipt, and the date of completion shall be that date. Once the reporting and response process is completed, Sky will notify the Reporter of the amount of such Reward and inform the Reporter of the payment procedures.
3. A Reporter may decline his/her receipt of the Reward by notifying Sky that he/she declines the Reward.
4. A Reporter who receives the notification stipulated in Paragraph 2 of this Article from Sky must submit the necessary information to Sky within 30 days after receiving such notification.
5. A Reporter shall not be entitled to the payment of a Reward if there is any deficiency in the completion of the necessary steps relating to the payment procedures, or if he/she fails to submit the necessary information relating to the payment procedures within the time limit set forth in the preceding paragraph.
6. A Reporter may not designate a third party other than the Reporter as a recipient of a Reward. However, this does not apply in the following cases:
 - (a) When Sky shall pay the public authority to which the Reporter belongs in accordance with the provisions of Article 3, Paragraph 2;

- (b) When a Reporter who is eligible to Participate in the Program pursuant to the proviso of Article 3, Paragraph 3(a) requests that his/her parent or legal guardian receive the Reward, in which case such parents or legal guardians themselves may be required to carry out the payment procedures; or
 - (c) When Sky agrees to pay a Reward to a third party other than the Reporter. If such third party is a corporation, an invoice to Sky from said corporation must be issued.
7. When receiving a Reward, the Reporter is liable for all taxes associated with his/her receipt of the Reward.
 8. The only method of payment of Rewards shall be by remittance to the bank account designated by the relevant Reporter. If any income tax withholding is required by laws or regulations, Sky shall withhold such income tax when paying the Rewards.
 9. In the event that a Reporter fails to receive all or part of a Reward despite Sky having carried out proper remittance procedures based on information submitted by the Reporter, Sky's obligation to pay the Reward shall cease to exist.
 10. Sky will not respond to any inquiries on the number of days required for the remittance of a Reward. Reporters shall acknowledge that if the designated bank account for receipt of a Reward is located overseas, the remittance of such Reward may take more time than usual.
 11. The number of times a Reporter can receive a Reward for the same Vulnerability (including those which Sky determines to be the same Vulnerability) shall be one (1). However, there is no limit on the number of times that a Reporter may report different Vulnerabilities or the number of times Rewards may be received.
 12. Reporters are not entitled to a Reward if they report Vulnerability Information on Vulnerabilities already known to Sky (including those that Sky determines to be the same Vulnerability).

Article 10 Method of Calculating Rewards

1. If Sky decides to pay a Reward pursuant to Paragraph 1 of the preceding article, Sky shall pay the Reward as remuneration to the Reporter.
2. In general, the amount of Rewards shall be the sum of the amounts listed in (a) and (b) below, multiplied by the ratio listed in (c) below.
 - (a) The basis amount grounded on the CVSS v3 Base Score as set out in Appended Table 1
 - (b) The additional amount depending on the category of the Vulnerability Information as set out in Appended Table 2
 - (c) The ratio determined by the impact of the Vulnerability Information on Sky's customers as set out in Appended Table 3
3. Notwithstanding the provisions of the preceding two paragraphs, the Reward amount determined in accordance with Paragraph 2 may be adjusted in consideration of the contents of the Vulnerability Information, the impact on Sky, and/or the impact on Sky's customers.

Article 11 Publication

1. Sky shall handle Vulnerability Information in accordance with Sky's "Publication Process of Vulnerability Information on our Products and Services".
2. Sky may announce information on Reporters who have submitted Vulnerability Information that qualifies for a Reward.

Sky shall announce the name as "not disclosed" if the Reporter does not specify any identification name for announcement or if it judges that the name provided as the identification name for announcement is inappropriate.
4. The Reporter's identification name for announcement shall be used to announce the Reporter on Sky's website or in printed materials issued by Sky, etc.

In the event Sky determines that a Reporter has engaged in any of the acts listed in the preceding paragraph, Sky shall be entitled to (i) prohibit such Reporter's Participation in the Program, (ii) decide not to pay a Reward or otherwise withdraw payment decisions for Vulnerability Information provided by such Reporter, (iii) seek reimbursement of Rewards already paid to such Reporter, and (iv) block such Reporter's access or take any other action(s) Sky reasonably requires, and Sky shall not be liable, directly or indirectly, for any loss incurred by the Reporter as a result of such act.
 3. In the event that a Reporter engages in any of the acts listed in Paragraph 1, the Reporter shall be liable to indemnify Sky for any damages caused by such act (including, but not limited to, the amount of damages incurred by Sky in the event that Sky is obliged to compensate a third party for damages caused by such act).

Table 3

Ratio Determined by the Impact of the Vulnerability Information on Sky's Customers

1. Products/Cloud Services

Level of Impact of the Vulnerability Information on Sky's Customers	Ratio to the Maximum Amount
Damage to customers caused by the Vulnerability already has been detected, and Sky has created and released or will create and release a program on an urgent basis to correct the problem	100%
Attacks on customers caused by the Vulnerability already have been detected, but no damage to customers has occurred, and Sky has created and released or will create and release a program to correct the problem	75%
No attacks on customers caused by the Vulnerability have been detected, but Sky has created and released or will create and release a program to correct the problem	50%
No attacks on customers caused by the Vulnerability have been detected, and the problem may be handled temporarily by a workaround which does not involve Sky's provision of a program to correct the problem	25%
No attacks on customers caused by the Vulnerability have been detected, and the problem may be addressed during the course of ordinary version upgrades	25%
The Vulnerability exists with respect to a part that was not developed by Sky, and, as a result of investigation, was found to be caused by another company's module, etc. which Sky uses	0%

2. Websites published by Sky

Level of Impact of the Vulnerability Information on Sky's Customers	Ratio to the Maximum Amount
Damages such as the leakage of personal information of users of the website already has occurred, and Sky has taken or will take urgent actions to address this issue, such as shutting down or upgrading the website or posting notices to the users of the website	100%
Damage such as the leakage of information other than personal information of users of the website already has occurred, and Sky has taken or will take urgent actions to address this issue, such as shutting down or upgrading the website or posting notices to the users of the website	50%
Manipulation of the website has been detected or will be detected, but was recovered by restoration	20%
No damage to the website has been detected or will be detected, and the website was normalized by upgrading	15%

Since there is no Basis Amount grounded on the CVSS v3 Base Score for websites, the Reward amount will generally be the amount obtained by multiplying the Additional Amount in Appended Table 2 by the ratio above.
